

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

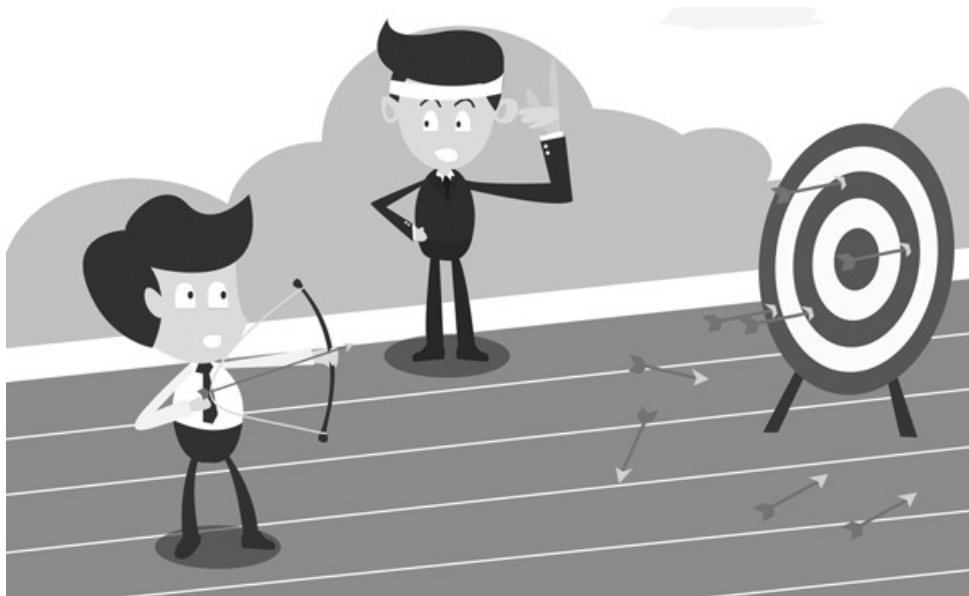

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Pronunciation Spot: Can you give me some instructions?

Learning Outcome

Use expressions about relationships and feelings in a range of social and work contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can ask questions using proper intonation.
- I can give oral instructions.
- I can talk about jobs and work.

Ask your partner:

- Who is an important mentor for you at work or school?
- What did you learn from him or her?

Let's Explore!

Ferdinand receives some financial training. What's it about?

* "Training" is the process of being taught the skills for a particular job or activity.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Ferdinand: Thanks for mentoring me, Rocco.

Rocco: My pleasure, young man. Today, I would like to tell you how to budget money.

Ferdinand: I'm all ears. Should I take notes?

Rocco: Yes. This will help you crush outstanding debt, and take charge of the company's financial future.

Ferdinand: That's good. I have been told I don't make very effective financial decisions.

Rocco: You will after this. Now, first of all, you need to start tracking your spending history.

Ferdinand: What does that mean?

Rocco: Basically, collecting past bills, bank and credit card statements, and receipts. Then, put them all together and you will get an estimate of monthly spendings. Are you with me?

Ferdinand: Yes. Please, go on!

Rocco: Next, you should consider using a software program to help you budget.

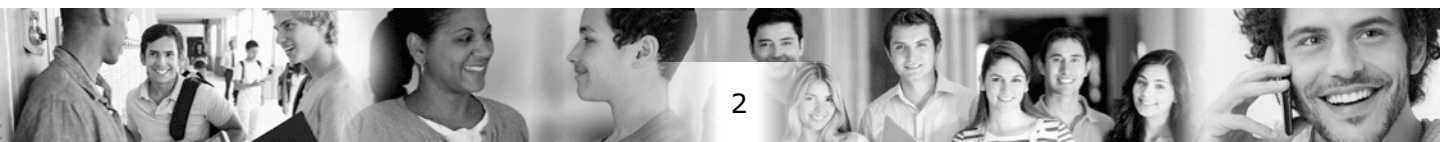

Ferdinand: What do you suggest?

Rocco: There are tons of financial software programs. It is the new trend in finance. They have built-in budget-making tools, as well as analytics to help project your cash-flow.

Ferdinand: That sounds great! Am I going to look into that right now?

Rocco: I am not done yet! After that, determine your overall monthly revenue. Finally, analyze your revenue and expenses. If your expenses are greater than your revenue, you're spending too much.

Ferdinand: Thanks for the instructions. I will learn from that.

Let's Practice!

What does Ferdinand need to do to help Polygon financially?

Instructions: Select the correct words from the possibilities provided to correctly complete the sentences.

1 put crush get	2 outstanding tracking understanding	3 estimate debt flow	4 money analytics cash-flow	5 cash-flow money analytics	6 withhold take charge of hold on
7 crush track estimate			8 revenue estimate cash-flow		9 debt revenue estimate

Our goal is to help 1 _____ 2 _____ 3 _____.

These tools as well as 4 _____ help project your 5 _____ so you can 6 _____ your finances.

It is important to 7 _____ your spending history. Add up all your bills and you will get an 8 _____ of monthly spendings.

If your expenses are greater than your 9 _____, you're spending too much.

Let's Practice!

Rocco gives Ferdinand some instructions.

Instructions: Number the sentences 1 to 7 in the correct order. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

- _____ After that, determine your overall monthly revenue. Finally, analyze your revenue and expenses.
- _____ Now, first of all, you need to start tracking your spending history.
- _____ Next, you should consider using a software program to help you budget.
- _____ Basically, this means collecting past bills, bank and credit card statements, and receipts.
- _____ Then, put them all together and you will get an estimate of monthly spendings.
- _____ I would like to tell you how to budget money.
- _____ There are tons of financial software programs. It is the new trend in finance.

Extension Activity

Instruct your colleague.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Think of a new co-worker or someone who has just started working in your company.
- Brainstorm a list of things they need to learn at work.
- Choose one or two things and write a list of instructions.
- When you are finished, give your partner/co-worker instructions on how to do something.
- Make sure you use modals and sequencing expressions.
- Ask questions.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I plan and give oral instructions for a co-worker.

☐ ☐

I talk about work.

☐ ☐

I use the proper intonation when asking questions.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- crush debt (expression): to remove money that is owing, quickly and effectively
e.g. This will help you crush your debt.
- outstanding (adjective): when referring to debt, the amount of money that remains unpaid e.g. This will help you pay off outstanding debt.
- take charge of (expression): to assume responsibility for something e.g. Ferdinand will take charge of the company's financial future.
- to track (verb): to record the trail, or history of one's activity e.g. You need to start tracking your spending history.
- estimate (noun): an approximate amount e.g. Put them all together and you will get an estimate of monthly spendings.
- analytics (noun): the systematic computational analysis of data or statistics e.g. You should get a finance software program that has analytics to help project your cash-flow.
- cash-flow (noun): the total amount of money being transferring in and out of a business e.g. A software program with analytics can help project your cash-flow.
- revenue (noun): financial income
e.g. Finally, analyze your revenue and expenses.

Learning Points

Giving Oral Instructions

Both in the workplace and in our everyday lives, it is important to ask for instructions as well as be able to give them. The chart below summarizes the most important language you can use.

Giving Instructions

You can use the following phrases to give instructions:

- I would like (you) to ... (verb)
- In my experience, the best way to do it is by / to ...
- You need to ... (verb). This is what we call ... I would start by ... (ing)
- It would be helpful to ... (+verb)

You can also use imperatives when giving instructions:

- You are to be responsible for ...
- Be (especially) careful when ...
- Please be sure to ...

You should also ask questions when giving instructions:

- Are you with me?

Asking Questions

Here are some questions you can ask while you are being given instructions:

- Do you mind If I ... (+verb)
- Could you repeat that?
- What do you suggest?

Sequencing

- First (of all) ...
- Next ...
- After that, ...
- Finally ...

Responding to Instructions

- Go on, I am taking note of everything.
- Please continue.
- Keep going.

Examples:

- I would like to go over a list of advice for this specific task.
- Do you mind if I take notes?
- First, be aware of your role in this job.
- Next, you need to think what software to use.
- Any questions so far?
- After that, you should be able to determine your expenses.

Learning Points

Intonation in Questions

When asking questions in English, it is important to think about your intonation. Intonation is the musical pattern of ups and downs in your voice. It basically describes how the voice rises and falls in speech.

There are two important intonation patterns in English when asking questions:

Falling Intonation This describes how your voice falls on the last stressed syllable of a word or group of words. This type of intonation is very common in "Wh-" questions.

- How does this relate to my question?
- Where can I stage the next event?

Rising Intonation This describes how your voice rises at the end of a sentence. This type of intonation is common in "yes & no" questions.

- Do you mind if I take notes?
- Any questions so far?

